BUILDEX Vancouver Moves to a New Home

March 22, 2010 - Vancouver, BC - For over a decade BUILDEX Vancouver has welcomed tens of thousands of design, construction and property management professionals from across western Canada and in Washington State. Buildex's growing roster of attendees has praised the cross networking and educational values of this show.

BUILDEX Vancouver continues to expand, year after year. In 2009, the show merged all three professional areas: design, property management and construction, to create one, streamlined event. For 2010, Buildex has relocated to the NEW Vancouver Convention Centre. This will be one of the first events held at the new Convention Centre after its use as the media hub for the Vancouver 2010 Olympics. This world class facility features state of the art technology and allows delegates an unparalleled exhibition experience. This move also allows for over 600 exhibits, 50 seminars, and 100 speakers – a 20% larger show than ever before!

Attendees can still expect the same great value that they have previously experienced with this event, including distinct educational content and targeted exhibits for Design, Construction and Real Estate Management. To learn more, visit www.buildexvancouver.com.

BUILDEX Vancouver is one of Canada's largest trade expositions, welcoming over twelve thousand Design, Construction and Real Estate Management professionals each year. Over 600 exhibits and more than 50 educational seminars impact THREE distinct professional markets, all under one roof: Interior design and architecture, Property and real estate management, Construction and renovation. BUILDEX is about designing, building and managing real estate.
